Forecast For West Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 11 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
A cold but dry day with some sunny spells.

Today:
A frosty and bright start to the day before cloud gradually thickens during the day. It will remain dry with some sunny intervals at times, though turning breezy later. Another cold day. Maximum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Tonight:
Staying dry into this evening and overnight with some clear skies. A cold and windy night with a frost forming soon after dark. Minimum temperature -3 deg C (27 deg F).

Friday:
Another dry day with patchy cloud and some sunny spells throughout. Winds will remain strong and it will feel cold with an overnight frost. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Starting dry on Saturday, then outbreaks of rain and snow later. Cloudy on Sunday and Monday with further bands of rain and snow. Perhaps icy at times on Sunday. Windy.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.